Subject: Re: New Website Launched (and help needed by EOD Wednesday)

Thanks, everyone for the feedback. Several of you caught some good things to fix! Please continue to let me know if you see anything wonky. There were some links to FODZ and FZ that were not working so I've removed them for now. I don't know if the issue is with their sites or not. I'll readdress this weekend when I'm back in town.

Since we don't have projects going on Thursday and Friday of this week, I'm going to announce the website tomorrow (Thursday) on Facebook. Feel free to share the post on your own pages if you feel so led. I'll also work on a newsletter this weekend to get out to our list.

Thanks

After many months (okay, 18+ months), much prayer and anxiety... our new website is launched! Praise the Lord. Hallelujah. Selah and amen.

What I need from you:

- Please go through the site and look for anything glaring that might be off, misspelled, etc.
- Feel free to double check all links to make sure they open up a new tab and that it takes you to that site.

I will not be announcing the site for a couple of days in order to give time for a few of you to take a look at everything. Please complete a review by end of day Wednesday of this week. I want to make the announcement on social media on Thursday of this week.

Note: There is one tweak to be made and that's to add our copyright info at the bottom of each page as well as repeating the menu tabs at the bottom, too. Those will come this week.

I want to say a big thank you to John Mark for the guidance and technical stuff... especially in the midst of gettin' hitched! Boy, did he put up with A LOT of questions from me! And thank you to Wes for a fresh set of eyes and for helping to make the switch between the old and new site. Appreciate you both so much!

Thanks all!
